Lloyd has more than 30 years' experience in a broad range of real estate and finance transactions. He has handled matters ranging from space leases for small businesses to billion dollar financings for large projects like the reconstruction of the World Trade Center. He is accustomed to working with the private sector, with governmental entities, and with not-for-profit entities.

Lloyd has represented lenders and borrowers in construction and permanent financings secured by many types of properties, including office buildings, mixed-use condominium developments, residential developments and educational facilities. He has also participated in sales and purchases of commercial and industrial properties, and ground lease, space lease and sublease transactions.

Lloyd has substantial experience representing borrowers, issuers, underwriters and purchasers of tax-exempt project revenue bonds and other municipal securities, and in structuring and documenting these financings.

He has represented public entities in negotiating long-term ground leases for the development of commercial and recreational projects, and has also represented public entities in acquiring property for their own use.

In addition, Lloyd frequently works with not-for-profit corporations in financings, real estate transactions, and other matters, including entity formation.
